WELCOME

As Editor of Russian Art and Culture, I am pleased to present London's inaugural Russian Art Week guide.

Russian Art Week is a bi-annual event which takes place in June and November. The major auction houses of Christie's, Sotheby's, Bonhams and MacDougalls all join together to present a series of Russian sales in London. Several Russian exhibitions and related cultural events also take place.

We hope you enjoy our guide to this major event. We aim to provide you with a comprehensive listing of all sales, events and a directory of Russian auction houses, galleries, dealers and specialist institutions.

We hope you find this helpful.

I would like to thank everyone involved for all their support and Evgeny Lebedev for sponsoring our new Russian Art & Culture Journal and postgraduate writing competition. Also we are grateful to historian Antony Beevor for presenting this year's prize.

Enjoy!

Theodora Clarke

Galeyev-Gallery (GG) is a gallery of Russian art of the 1920's and 1930's , situated at the heart of Moscow's historical centre, in the quiet streets just off the Patriarschie Prudy.

The gallery's exhibition policy is curated by an art historian and expert in the pre-War (before 1941) painting, graphic art and photography – Ildar Galeyev.A fresh examination of the history of art between the two World Wars, the addition of new names previously left out of history due to ideological reasons, showcases of the legacies of established masters of the era, as well as the research of unique and unknown aspects of their works: those are the main areas of focus for the gallery.

Exhibitions that take place in GG are mono-projects, dedicated and compiled from the works of a single artist. During the preparation stage, we conduct a scientific exploration and a thorough search to find the best materials out of all the resources available – from private collections to museums.

We are able to exhibit around 70 to 120 works of art at any one time in the gallery.GG is also known for its publishing projects. Each exhibition is accompanied a book about the artists, containing materials that, oftentimes, are published for the very first time. Quality and freshness of the material are the main guiding principles of the publishing projects.

GG has been conducting both its exhibition and publishing projects since 2002. There have been around 40 exhibitions to date and as many books published. We are proud to keep our material fresh and pique public interest with every exhibition.

Specialisation:

2011 saw the three highest prices for any paintings ever sold in a Russian sale by an international auction house established by Christie's. In June 2011 Christie's led the market with the sale of Ilya Repin's magnificent painting A Parisian Café, which realised £4,521,250 ($7,396,123). The continuing strength of the Russian art market was confirmed by the most recent sales in May this year.
